

The Box

It reminds you of the sky with all clouds concealed as if hiding from its smell of age

Yet its unmarked skin proves different

It stands there in still silence

Paper

f

l

o

w

s

from it like the Niagara falls

as it struggles to not let go

Some escape its delicate grasp though

But it does not bend nor move at all

Still in silence

Because its just a box, unmoving...silent

Aayushma, Year 8

St. George Girls' High School